What her tests actually mean

Why she teases and pushes a little, and how to pass without playing games.

A "test" is rarely a conscious trick. It's a woman checking, in real time, whether the confident, easy man in front of her is real or a performance. She pokes a little and watches what happens. You don't pass by having the perfect comeback. You pass by staying relaxed, keeping your sense of humour and not changing who you are to win her approval.

01 "You probably say that to every girl"

WHAT'S GOING ON She liked the compliment and wants to know it was sincere, not a line.

> DO THIS Don't defend it with a speech. Smile, own it, and move on.

"Only the ones who deserve it. You're doing fine so far."

02 "You're not my type"

WHAT'S GOING ON Often playful. If she were truly uninterested she'd be cold, not teasing. A bored woman doesn't argue, she leaves.

> DO THIS Agree and amplify with a grin, then carry on with the conversation like it didn't shake you.

"Good. Your type clearly hasn't worked out, so this is progress."

03 "I bet you have a girlfriend"

WHAT'S GOING ON She's curious whether you're available and whether other women find you attractive.

> DO THIS Answer honestly and lightly. Don't brag and don't over-explain.

"Nope. Why, are you applying?"

04 "Are you always this confident?"

WHAT'S GOING ON She's checking whether the confidence holds when someone questions it.

> DO THIS Don't backpedal or suddenly turn humble. Keep the same tone.

"Only around people I like talking to."

05 Showing up late, or rescheduling once

WHAT'S GOING ON Could be life. Could be a check of whether you'll accept anything.

> DO THIS Be gracious the first time. If it becomes a pattern, say so calmly and stop making plans she doesn't keep.

"All good. Just a heads-up next time, my time matters to me too."

06 "You're trouble"

WHAT'S GOING ON She likes you more than she planned to and is a bit wary of it.

> DO THIS Take it as the compliment it is. Stay light.

"Only the good kind."

MISTAKES THAT COST YOU

- Getting defensive. Explaining yourself tells her the push landed.
- Getting needy: "no really, I'm a nice guy, I swear."
- Testing her back to "win". It's not a fight, and keeping score turns flirting into a contest.
- Treating real disrespect as a test. Teasing is play; repeated rudeness is information. Leave.

THE ONE RULE

Pass by staying the same: relaxed, warm and amused. You don't explain, you don't argue, you don't shrink.
