4 beliefs that keep men confused about women

The ideas most men were taught, why they backfire, and what to believe instead.

Most men aren't bad with women because they're unattractive. They're running beliefs that sound reasonable and quietly kill attraction: be agreeable, wait for clear instructions, justify everything, take every word literally. Swap these four and the same man, with the same face and job, gets very different results.

01 "If I'm nice enough, she'll like me."

WHAT'S GOING ON Niceness buys comfort, and comfort alone isn't attraction. What draws her in is a man with his own opinions, plans and boundaries, who is also kind.

> DO THIS Keep the kindness. Drop the people-pleasing. Have a preference, say no sometimes, and let her see a life she isn't the centre of.

02 "She'll tell me what she wants."

WHAT'S GOING ON She'll often tell you what she thinks she's supposed to want. Her reactions are more honest than her list.

> DO THIS Notice when she lights up, leans in, laughs, asks more. Do more of that. Words still matter on the big things: consent, boundaries and dealbreakers.

03 "If I explain myself, she'll understand."

WHAT'S GOING ON Every extra justification sounds like asking permission. Over-explaining reads as unsure.

> DO THIS Say what you want or what you decided in one or two sentences. Give a reason if one is needed, then stop.

"I can't make Friday. Saturday works though."

04 "She said she's fine, so she's fine."

WHAT'S GOING ON "Fine" can be true. Often it's an invitation to notice. She doesn't want an interrogation; she wants to feel you're paying attention.

> DO THIS Stay close and calm, check once, and leave the door open. Don't force a talk and don't vanish.

"Okay. I'm here if you want to talk about it later."

MISTAKES THAT COST YOU

- Confusing "nice" with "agrees with everything".
- Waiting for perfect clarity before acting. Ask her out; you'll learn more from her answer than from analysing.
- Arguing with her feelings using facts.
- Treating women as a puzzle to solve instead of people to get to know.

THE ONE RULE

Women show what they want. Your job is to pay attention, act with clarity and stay kind.

New guide with every reel on @marco.dates. These are common patterns, not mind-reading: every woman is different, the only way to know is to pay attention and ask, and a clear no is always a no.
